New Course: ARTH 5127 History of Architecture

“With the introduction of the new rubric for art history courses (ARTH), there is expected to be a rise in student number choosing art history either as a major or as a minor. This class would expand significantly the coverage of architecture in an art historical context; first, by increasing the detailed study of a broad range of architectural examples throughout history ranging from the pre-historic period to the present day, and second, by covering a wide range of geographical areas and traditions.”
