WINDS OF CHANGE

Flying high and soaring into a new decade, ETSU continued to encase some things old and new, but always in the same quantity and order. State reached the full spectrum of fulfilling life — not just by focusing on academics or sports, but on developing an entire learning experiences-turned-memories.

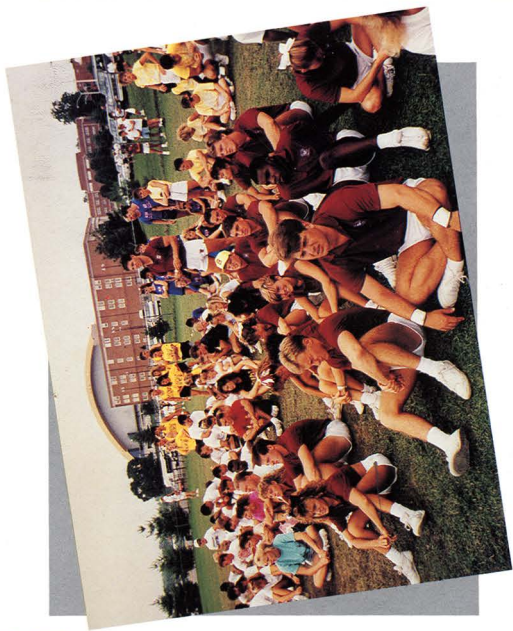

ed confidently into another year of presidency with his eye on the year 2000. The men's basketball team attained national recognition once again. The medical school turned out another new group of graduates. And the campus saw another year pass by; another year older and another year wiser. Another year richer.

DIFFERENT ASPECT

What is unique about East Tennessee State University? ETSU's different people, different personalities, different and different ideas all come together. The spirit at ETSU shines through just like the various colors of a kaleidoscope.

Couples come together in time of need to support each other in a crisis or in a social perspective. Like the different pictures of a kaleidoscope, distinct pictures arise during the school year in good times and in bad times. When each aspect of the university works as a whole, they each stand for a different color in the kaleidoscope. The aspects such as academics sports, greek life, experience and life long friends really provide great opportunity for each student at East Tennessee State University.

Lab work is not at all down the tubes at the medical school.

ACTIVITY SPECTRA

Variety is the key to a successful college career. Students balance class loads while at the same time are able to maintain an active participation in extracurricular activities. After hours in class, the last activity a student wants to think about is studying. The wide spectra of events ranges from sports to social and community service groups. With this assortment of activities available, the after-class hours are as colorful as those spent in class.

IVERSE PATTERNS

As diverse as the patterns of a Kaleidoscope, so are the various buildings and landscapes of the ETSU campus. No matter from what angle one observes the campus, the scenery is never the same. An ever-changing feature of the campus is the landscape. From season to season, the trees turn from the green of summer to the reds, golds, and oranges of fall, producing a year round spectra of color. As winter arrives, the campus is transformed and covered with a white blanket of snow. Another prominent feature is the buildings that comprise the campus. From the massive, multi-story Science building to the modern D.P. Culp Center, students see a wide variety of architectural styles. Seasonal colors and structural designs furnish students with a wide array of viewing pleasures.

Preview once again brought its participants soaring to new heights while giving group leaders an experience they will never forget.

Group leaders prepared for three days on how to properly introduce new and diverse students to ETSU under the direction of Assistant Dean of Student Affairs Sally ThomasLee. She said enrollment in Preview decreased, but the quality of the group leaders increased.

Melinda Vartan and Chip Miller, two of the leaders, both said their experiences as leaders were more rewarding than when they were involved in Preview as incoming freshmen.

"To me it is more important that the freshmen have a network to lean on than learning about campus," Vartan said.

By using games the leaders had also played during training, a happy medium was achieved in the group.

"I'm already looking forward to being selected as a leader for next year," Miller said.

embership has privileges

Ah, yes! Finally, the freedom to do whatever whenever! No more sneaking anything! No more worrying about curfews or rules or standing in line for a shower!

During a student's junior or senior-year in college, the urge to leave the laws of the dorm far behind makes thoughts of a new "home away from home" almost irresistible.

Why? Communications major Seth Jolly said, "I like having my privacy and not being cramped up in a little room with two other people for a couple of years of my life."

While living off campus has its advantages, it also has its bad points. "I can't believe how much our electric bill went up this month," said sophomore Amanda Long. "It seems like it becomes more and more expensive every time."

Living off campus teaches independence as well as responsibility. Maybe living in an apartment does have its privileges.

How about it? Living in a building with a couple hundred other people, sharing everything including closet space? Doesn't that sound like fun?

Actually it is, according to sophomore John Gray. "I love it," Gray says. Dorm life means a lot of different things to different people. To some it's just a place to stay between weekends, to others it's home. Whatever it means, there's one thing you can say about your dorm: It's there!

heck that registration?

Everyone has heard the saying that patience is a virtue. Guaranteed, when an ETSU student goes to register or buy books, he or she had better make sure there is a full supply of patience lodged somewhere in between the registration and encumbrance cards.

While the point guard system assigns students certain days to register, the lines are still somewhat lengthy. Some students complain about the lines, but then again, friends can renew relationships, make new acquaintances and even catch up on the latest fads and follies.

Sophomore Bridgette Shoemaker said, "Even though registration and books only comes twice a year, it is still a real hassle to stand in all the lines. But the Bookstore can be a real happening place when a majority of the ETSU students converge upon it."

Regardless of a student's feelings toward the lines at the beginning of the semester, everyone must endure them — unless someone else does it for them. But who gets that lucky?
—Lanna Monday

Whese lines, every where lines, in case registration and drop/add lines aren't enough, lines at the bookstore should satisfy every student's line fetish.

Working classes each semester is hard enough without drop/add lines to add to each new semester's myriad frustrations.

Last of shiners Culp bright spot

Asshine from Ozell Carter sure can brighten the bi-annual registration blues.

Keep your eyes peeled as you walk into the Culp University Center doors at the Bookstore and chances are, you'll see a guy you're sure to talk a shine to.

Ozell Carter himself does more than take a shine to folks, he gives them — shiners, that is.

One of the few "shiners" left in the ultra-modern 1990s, the youthful 76-year-old lives off the Social Security and tips — and the spiritual sustenance he draws from talking with good folks. "I love the people and the job," he says. "It helps me reach people."

You see, the white-aproned gentleman is also a minister, at Church of God of Our Lord Jesus. "I love to talk to them about the soul," Carter says, "and not just the one on the bottom of the shoe I'm shining." Shiners are $3. But Carter's real service is priceless.

A little teamwork can make buying books a little easier to bear and less confusing. After all, two heads are better ...

The end of the line, a long, long, long awaited accomplishment. Hallelujah, miracles do come true, after all.

Laborers

of love

They're everywhere. Chocera, Berrigiana, Rod Lobster... Walmart, Sears Roebuck Systems, J.C. Penney... Texas, Arizona, Gulf... Every possible outlet of retail industry has been infiltrated by that awesome force of part-time workers better known as (drum roll) — "students."

Some students simply want the experience for their resume. Some do it for the extra cash for spending or "party" money.

Regardless of the reason, the ETSU student body contributes a massive amount of hours to the local work force. It's mutually beneficial — to employers and employees.

Senior engineering major Brian Creech was glad to work for his father's electronics company during the summer. "I really liked doing something constructive with my spare time," he said. "The experience was great and the money was great plus too."

Even though the thought of money basically enters everyone's mind, for those who want more, there is always the labor force working after school hours.

METHOD IN BUC MADNESS

Go, Bucs, go
... and go and go and go ...

Madness has stricken the people of the Tri-Cities. Johnson City itself is reportedly hardest hit.

This maniacal madness sets in every year about Midnight Madness time and as the season (basketball, of course) progresses, more and more students, faculty, staff and area residents fall prey to its insidious clutches.

They're hooked before they know it. With a conference champions legacy in basketball and national recognition in golf and tennis, Buc fans are coming out of the woodwork — and thousands of homes.

"Because of all the national media coverage State is getting, I want everyone to know I am proud to be a Buck fan," said sophomore criminal justice major Gimone Paninski. "I take my pom-poms to root for the team."

Journalism major Jenni Paninski said, "I go to the games in our team colors because I have a lot of friends on the team and I want them to know that I am behind them."

Buccaneer sweatshirts, T-shirts, and hats are selling like mad, good seats at games are being bartered for platinum. In fact, some basketball fans come hours ahead to get their precious spots.

Painting faces blue and gold, wearing skulls and crossbones on their cheeks or sports equipment on their heads and forever getting loud are the rage.

But if it's really insanity, it's epidemic. Watch out for the Buc Express! It may be crazy but it's a merry madness!

— Lanna Monday

School fad ... or spirit?

It seems like every semester there are new ETSU sweatshirts, key rings, posters and toys to tempt unsuspecting students. A dorm room isn't complete without 'em.

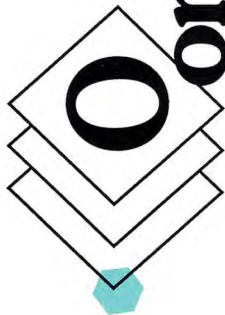

A couple of years ago, a student wouldn't be caught wearing anything with an ETSU logo on it, but all that has changed. Sweatshirts and T-shirts — and pride in the university — are the new fad.

Undecided major Tommy Hodge said "I want everybody to know where I am going to school and that I am rooting for the Buccaneers."

Well, Tommy's not alone.

On stage on target

Sigma Nu shows its spirit in a B/C, if cryptic, way.

ETSU was the theater for "The World on Stage" during Homecoming 1990. The week began appropriately in the theater, with a Road Company production of Cancelled Destiny, a one-act play about late ETSU English professor Christine Burleson. Students took to the stage on Tuesday for the skit competition, expressing their ideas of the week's theme in original performances. The mellifluous "BuceWorth" performed on Thursday before the announcement of the Homecoming Court. Homecoming performances, however, were not confined to a theater. Many students performed athletically in the Buccaneer Road Race, while some students could be found competing in some non-traditional sporting events in the Olympic Games or trying their luck and skill at booths at the Charity Carnival.

But, perhaps the biggest performance came Saturday as the Buccaneer football team emerged victorious against the Valdosta State Blazers, with a final score of 37-22.

— Eugenia Estes

Crowning moment ...

Homecoming was the crowning moment for a pair of ETSU students. During halftime, Sherry Grigsby was crowned Homecoming queen, and Jimmy Hurley, king. Grigsby, a senior marketing major from Corryton, represented Sigma Kappa sorority and Sigma Chi fraternity. Hurley, a junior finance major from Knoxville representing Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and Alpha Delta Pi, ascended to the position left by the first king Todd Prosean.

"I had hoped for this to happen and now that it has, it feels absolutely wonderful," Grigsby said after being crowned. "I had so much support from so many people, non-greeks and greeks alike."

Dream lives on

During the last couple of decades, civil rights activists have become a massive influence on all people. Great leaders such as Martin Luther King Jr. have pressed forward to raise the status of the black community to soaring heights.

Following in these footsteps, the Black Affairs program has become one of the most active organizations on campus.

"It is an outlet for black students," said Black Affairs President Mark Jackson, "outside of the classroom."

"It is a mixture of things," Jackson said.

Black Affairs is a social and academic organization. They organize black Greek fraternities and sororities, charity events, talent and step shows, and play host to several special speakers.

While all programs sponsored by Black Affairs are open to all races, it annually recognizes the black sophomore, junior and senior with the highest GPA, with awards and scholarships.

Illustrating that Black Affairs is a wide-ranging student organization to support to black activism, students conducted a letter-writing and mailing project as a contribution to the war effort, not to mention a dance-a-thon to raise money for the March of Dimes.

Because most black students are involved in the Black Affairs program to some extent, the fact remains: There is still time to work united for a worthwhile cause.

Fraternity up and 'coming'

"It's been a long time in coming," said Alvin Fritts, president of ETSU's new African-American fraternity, Alpha Phi Alpha.

The new campus group began organizing in 1989 and was chartered in November 1990.

Since then, Alpha Phi Alpha has been a real mover and shaker on campus, participating in Black History Month events, sponsoring a February dance-a-thon and more.

I t's greek and more

Rush is not a hurried event. Greeks — at ETSU and elsewhere — take it seriously.

After all, fall and spring rush are prime opportunities to recruit new members, as well as meet new people. And hopefully, students who don't have a local support system, and many who do, can find a compatible atmosphere.

"I believe most people go through rush with the plans of joining a fraternity," said Inter-Fraternity Council Rush Chairman Ken Bailey, "however, that is not the only reason to go through rush. You can meet a lot of people and also have a lot of fun."

John Montey, 19, Freshicksburg, Va., said he went through rush last fall because he had several friends in fraternities. "I wanted to see for myself what they talked about so much," Montey said.

Rush parties were held at each fraternity house and sorority suite, with the exception of Tau Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Delta Rho, which met in Culp University Center.

But rush is not a personality contest or just a reason to party, Bailey said. "Each fraternity looks for men who can present themselves as they really are," he said, "not someone who tries to be what he isn't."

'Something special'

Car washing was one of the wetter rush activities.

What does it mean to be greek? About 5 percent of the student body at ETSU is greek, so it must be something special.

The social organizations classified as fraternities and sororities succeeded in raising the overall greek GPA a tenth of a point from the previous semester.

And greeks are the first to pitch in and help on campus and elsewhere, according to Debbie Craig, director of the Student Activities Center. "Greeks made up 10,000 of the total 17,000 volunteer hours served last school year," she said.

A star is born

Every now and then a star is born, but there is no star without a beginning whether self-made or created by chance. Taking this chance, the very daring and a very few have chosen a pastime that could possibly end up as a profession — the music profession.

Playing in local hot spots weekly and even an occasional road trip are things that only a truly dedicated artist would do.

Sophomore drummer, John McClellan of Crystal Vision said "Playing music is fun. It is something you can do with your spare time. If it works out for you, then it is great."

If it works out and makes money, too, it's even better!

Nov. 18, 1990. A small part of ETSU was blown away in a matter of hours.

The Smithereens exploded in Culp University Center and left its enthusiastic-but-small audience of rockers dangling from the rafters. It may have been a "Room Without a View," but the "Blue Period" was brief and the band had a "Cigarette" and decided to play Especially for You.

The crowd swayed at the foot of the stage, and the long-awaited New Jersey band swayed the crowd — with smoke, volume and rapport. Fans left satisfied, and band members — Jim Badjak, Dennis Diken, Pat Dinizio and Mike Mesaros — weren't daunted by the diminutive attendance.

Campus Activities Board didn't share the band's sentiment.

CAB was ready to blow up after appraising ticket sales. By Nov. 16, barely more than 200 tickets had been sold, for an auditorium that holds 950.

The Smithereens' change for the concert was $14,000, according to Teresa Keller, CAB president, and CAB had taken out a loan to cover it; half of the fee (COC would pay the other half).

Ever noticed most of the concerts that come to Johnson City are hard rock concerts? While some students like the music of groups such as Slaughter, Poison and Dainin Tankz, it seems like the pop and rap scenes are always hopping.

But they are always hopping somewhere else.

This year students were found traveling great distances just to see a concert. Big K-Town, also known as Knoxville, played host to several ETSU students at their concerts including M.C. Hammer, Janet Jackson, Richard Marx and ZZ Top. But, that is actually so far compared to Daytona Beach, Atlanta and Norfolk.

How shalt not park

If thou shalt drive to campus, thou shalt not park—Murphy's Law No. 13. Unbelievable! Another ticket to pay and it is not even for speeding. A lot of good that radar detector does on campus.

Tickets for handicap parking, backed-in parking, 20-minute-plus parking and no parking.

There is hardly a student who hasn't received at least one, if not multitudes of parking tickets. While the ticket prices continue to rise, so does the student body -- and faculty -- temper.

Sophomore biology major Sam Mumpower said, "I can't believe how much money I have had to pay out in tickets this semester alone. And if you don't pay them within 30 days, they double. It is really a pain when you don't have that kind of cash falling off your money tree." Believe it: The campus cops will get you. And if they don't, Murphy's law will.

Lights flood campus

Hey, how about a Light?

Although alcohol is forbidden on campus, it is quite apparent that the rule is not too closely followed.

Beer and alcohol bottles can be seen in dormitory dumpsters, trash cans and sometimes, lining the sidewalks -- not to mention under beds and in refrigerators.

Sophomore Carla Garber says, "It is a problem on every campus. ETSU is no exception. I guess students feel that college is the place to drink."

Whether drinking is done in the privacy of one's own room or elsewhere on campus, it is "illegal" by ETSU "laws."

So the next time a light attack hits, it had better be for a bulb above the sink.

Students looking for a Light don't have to go far, despite ETSU rules.

Check out the dumpsters behind the dorms after a weekend ...

Remember, Big Brother and Big Sister are watching where you park.

Walking shorts and mini skirts were in fashion all year round.

Keeping up with Joycees

Trying to keep up with the Joycees next door can break a person up. But, how much can one depend on material things? A lot.

After tie-dyed shirts, baggy pants, the newest rap or new-wave tapes, gold chains, leather jackets, the new little red sports car and all those other things that came in with New Year Baby '89, a little jingle in the pocket could altogether be hard to come by.

Fads come and go each year. Deciphering which ones to follow and incorporate into a student's lifestyle is a rough course to take in college.

What's the point in fads, anyway? Freshman Journalism major Lynn-more Rives said, "To give our generation some kind of identification. We want to be remembered in years to come, even if we find ourselves laughing when we are older."

Whether fads are for generation identification or a simple case of keeping up with everyone else, students have a tough act to follow.

Animals have always been a part of human nature, so naturally many students should have pets, not to mention the unusual ones either.

While students who live on-campus are limited to the types of pets that they can have, or rather can get away with having, those who live off-campus have a multitude of 'best friends.'

When asked why she bought Kipper the cat, sophomore Amanda Long said, "He keeps me company. It is nice to be able to have someone to come home to at night. He never complains and he is always where he should be, not to mention that he is quiet when I need to study."

Farm breeds animal lover

Diana Hayes has always loved animals. She had no choice.

"I grew up on a farm," Diana says. "Liking animals is sort of a prerequisite."

Now that the 22-year-old health education major has a choice, she still loves 'em. Though she decided against a veterinary major, Diana is kennel attendant and veterinary assistant for Cherokee Hospital for Animals in Johnson City, the third vet she's worked for.

But even as a health major, those furry creatures aren't far from Diana's thoughts — or plans for the future.

"I'm just working with the health of animals," she says. "It's sort of the same field, just a different perspective."

Mooove over, fib. Diana Hayes' pet takes more than fresh food and water each day.

The Blob terrorizes campus

Where else could you study and exercise at the same time except ETSU.

Out of nowhere it came and plagued itself in the most show of places. A thing that is despised and hated and can even be damaging to all good health.

It is the nightmare that came to life. No, it is not the blob, it is the FRESHMAN FIFTEEN — AUGH!!!

Being away from home for the first time took its toll on some students. Munching on junk food because it was fast and convenient opened the door to a new activity — working-out and into a smaller clothing size.

Aerobic classes in Brooks Gym attracted females while the weight room was dominated by the masculine gender. Racquetball and tennis courts were constantly in use. Nautilus and Power Plus Building and Fitness Center also had students fit.

Such athletic pursuits are not a workout for mind only. "Like they say, a healthy body and mind makes a better person," freshman Krista Ward said.

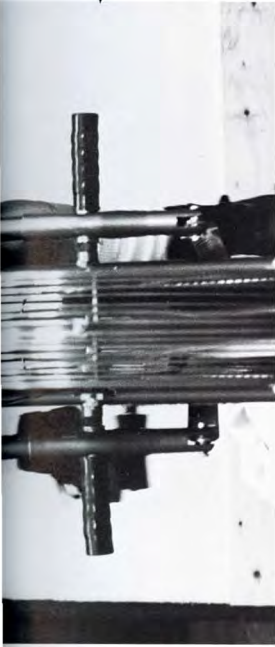

Where a student exercised really did not matter, just as long as he or she improved fat and looked better. It's not always better to only look good than to feel good, darling!

If your idea of exercise was lifting food to your mouth while flipping the remote, then you were categorized as a Couch Potato in 1980 and '91. Although the thought of exercise drifted in and out of your mind, Showtime's great programming always seemed to interfere with aerobics, weight training or any other form of physical activity.

"It's just so much easier to hit the snooze button than to get up for an early morning jog," said freshman Christy Arnold.

So Couch Potatoes only dreamed of running marathons, swimming laps or even working up a little sweat. For the time being, though, Showtime's sporting events offered enough working out for most Couch Potatoes.

"How about playing The Time Warp?" WETS-104 is ETSU's own campus wide radio station. Located on the fifth floor of Warf-Pickel Hall, WETS-104 plays album-oriented rock programs by student DJs.

This year-$1,920 in GOG funds allocated to the Association of Student Radio Broadcasters helped WETS-104 by providing funds for new releases to the station for one year.

"The SGA has been very helpful by showing us channels to go through to get money," said George Brandon, music director.

Students who aren't in the mood for music can tune in to ETSU's TV station, WETS-TV Channel 11.

This station broadcasts new shows and even a dating game to campus. Now there is a new talk show, Spectrums.

"They wanted someone to do a show who would be serious," said hostess LeAnn Willis. "I suppose I fit the bill!"

Marching to different tune

It begins during the summer and continues through March. Before any other student have arrived on campus, the band is rehearsing formations on the practice fields.

During the week of band camp, ETSU's finest strive for musical perfection and the ultimate marching style.

Then during halftimes of Buccaneer football games, those high-stepping styles reach a crescendo as fans are transported to tropical isles with such pieces as director Bob Buckner's undersea medley, from Jaws, The Little Mermaid and Popeye.

The basketball pep band does transporting of its own with jumping renditions of the fight song, "Hey, baby" and cartoon music for referee bloopers. Hey, who loves that team, baby?

Senior music major Cindy Graybeal loves that band. "I love the band because of the people and it is great to be able to work together as a group," she said.

As hard as those brassy banes work, perhaps fans will catch on and come especially for halftime and back the Bucs on the side.

MOLDING PASSIONS

How about feather painting? Drawing? Sculpting?

Sketching?

Every student has some type of avocation to keep them occupied during their spare time. While some students collect things, there are others who express themselves through art, whether it be molding a statue to perfection or covering a canvas with a colorful scheme of oil hues.

"It is really hard to find the time to do the things that I want, but nothing brings me more serenity than sitting down with a box of charcoal pencils and a sketching pad in the middle of the great outdoors," said junior Paul Edwards.

It is true, finding time for that outlet of feelings through creativity is hard to come by, but there are students who make it a part of their regular routine. "I always make sure I have at least an hour per day to spend on myself to do the things that I want to do," said sophomore Julie Carr.

While a day in the life of a student may be incredibly busy, there are always students who take time out from the rat race for that special passion.

What is more than 50 years old and takes about five days and 15 strong men to hang?

The mural in Culp University Center Auditorium, of course.

Most ETSU students have probably missed the pre-World War II era painting of rural East Tennessee life, because it hangs 20 feet above the main foyer.

But, University Center Director Tony Warner says when budget cuts wane, spotlights and explanatory plaques will herald the Works Projects Administration painting, loaned to ETSU by the Postal Service and hung May 1990.

"It's real interesting," Warner said.

Even more interesting is the days and days of labor it took to hang it. "It was not easy task," said Jim Patterson, center technical services manager.

But, anything for art.

"In spite of everything I still believe that people are really good at heart," said Anne Frank, portrayed by freshman Laura White, in the theatre department's fall production of The Diary of Anne Frank.

Frank was good at heart and good in deed. Diary was good indeed. And actually the Holocaust story was playing second fiddle to musical Peter Pan. But the theatre department couldn't get Peter to fly -- in Gilbreath Theatre.

Diary, which ran Nov. 14-18, turned out to be good at the box office and good experience. "It was really interesting for me to put myself in that perspective; being a young Jewish girl during World War II and remembering what it was like to be 13," White said.

After the success of the The Diary of Anne Frank, the theatre department decided on a modern version of Antigone for a change of pace spring semester, with theatre faculty member and professional actress Alesha Brevard in the lead role.

Antigone was performed the last week of March and the first week of April.

ast winds steady

The winds of politics swept ETSU in 1990-91, but international students hung tough and weren't blown away. According to international student counselor Mylena Starr, eight new foreign students signed up for spring nearly balancing those leaving or graduating, keeping the school tally steady near 130.

With Tiananmen Square slipping far into the past, Chinese students were plentiful on campus. "They opened the gates, China," Starr said. But with the Mideast hostilities blazing, "Iranians are down to just a few," she said. The Smokies can become a refuge. "I've had foreign students go away from Tennessee and visit other states," she said, "and they say they're always glad to come back to Tennessee because of the people."

Heart before business

America may need all the "good men" it can get during war time, but one good man knows his own country needs him more.

Shankar Char, a 26-year-old international student from India, was finishing up his second master's degree from ETSU — this time in business — spring semester. And he's ready to take that education home.

Char came to ETSU in 1966 to pursue a master's in microbiology (his bachelor's is from University of Bombay in the same field). He not only pursued it, but he completed his degree in fall 1968.

"I might decide to work in the stock exchange in India," he said.

Char appreciates his U.S. education, but "I never had any intention of settling in this country," he said. "My country needs me more than this country does."

Students back in swing

Graduation is a dream come true for many adult students.

Although most ETSU students fall between the ages of 18 and 25, another population on campus is over 25 — the adult students.

These students are people who decided, later in life, that a college education was a good idea.

Reasons for going back to school range from wanting to be able to pay the bills to a simple career change.

In some cases, college courses aid people in the area of job promotion within their own work environment. With the continual rise in two-income families, many women are choosing to return to school to support their families financially or to get a particular job.

To help accommodate the adult students on campus, ETSU set up a special office in Culp University Center special office area for these students to find out more about programs particular to their own needs.

Regardless of the age of a student, college opportunities still abound.

Physical spurs intellectual

Some people go to school to increase their earnings. Others look on education as a way to grow intellectually.

One of the latter is former physical plant worker Stanellette Williams. Williams, who was hired on the condition that she would pursue her master's degree, said, "It was just something that I had to do. I love teaching, and anything that improves myself is worth it."

Williams ended up getting her master's in education. "Graduate school was hard," she said, "but it turned out to be fun."

While Stanellette Williams' shoes are definitely hard ones to fill, her pathway is a good one to follow.

Parents say college is like a dream; that it is not the real world; that it is easier. So, if it is not really real, then why does that terrible worldly economic factor of INFLATION keep nipping at our noses?

This year students faced both activity and tuition increases. Chemistry major Kevin Gill said, "I think it is a good idea in some respects, but I wonder if it really wise. Each year tuition goes up, so what is the $45 activity fee going to do this year as compared to next year. Where will it stop? Those on tight budgets were not so agreeable. # HEY'RE BACK FOR MORE

From his Dossert Hall
office,
Bruce
Coleman oversees Telefund.

After spending four to six years at a university many students expect to graduate and spend their days elsewhere. But some have chosen to stick with ETSU.

Whether their reasons lie in the type of job offered, a particular dedication to this place or just the idea of paying bills, the fact remains that they came back.

I chose to come back to the university and try to make it grow, because I think it's got a good future," said assistant director of development Bruce Coleman, who graduated in 1972, received his master's in '82, and now is working on his doctorate at ETSU.

Some people really keep coming back!

Try again Lexus. Remember studying is more important than awaiting the arrival of the Great Pumpkin.

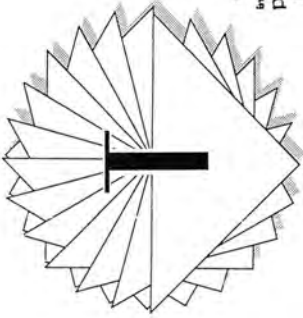

Procrastination, the king of all bad habits, is a commoner; but one with power. Needless to say, more seen than the Great Pumpkin, procrastination strikes everyone eventually.

When he does not want to study: Criminal Justice major Rory Scallard said I just wander down the hall and stidle up a conversation with whoever, just going door to door, you can always find someone to talk to when you don't want to study.

On the flip side, public relations major Renee Vaughn said I guess I study about 10 hours a week more or less, but definitely more during test time. I really don't have time to do any more.

IT'S A SCIENCE

Though rumors of 5 am wake-up calls and runs that seem to last forever follow ROTC units everywhere, the truth is that cadets really aren't much different than other students.

"A day in the life of a cadet is much like any other student's day, with a few exceptions," said Lt. Col. Richard D. Moosner.

ROTC cadets do run as a part of their PC, or physical training, but they don't get up at five am to do it. They take classes in leadership training, understanding army, technical skills, and skills application labs. Moosner said, just scratching the surface.

According to freshman political science major and ROTC cadet PFC Faraa Childers, she joined ROTC for the personal achievement and the feeling that I made a difference for everyone, not just myself. I love it!

To go or not to go?

Classroom discussion with
Dr. Sharp inspire literature students.

Is it cold outside? Is it dreary? Is it too sunny? Or is it perfect weather for class attending?

While weather often affected the decision of class attendance, many teachers took role everyday; then again there were those, usually with large classes, who did not. Students had different opinions on the attendance issue.

"I don't think we should have attendance policies at all," said pre-med major Wade Newman. "If you don't want to learn, then you won't go. I don't think your grade should be affected because of absences. Chances are, if you don't go, you won't make the grade anyway."

Commenting on the same subject, sophomore Billie Johnson said "If you are paying of your own free will to come to school, then you should be able to come of your own free will. If you don't want to go to class, then it is your own money you're throwing away." Whether or not a student decided to go or not to class, he or she may have not thought about the long-term effects of that "cut."

To go or not to go. That is the question.

Who shot whom?

Freshmen born after 1957 and who hadn't had one since 1980 needed a shot in the arm in 1990. And if they expected to remain registered at ETSU, they got one — a measles shot. To register for spring semester, these fortunate students were required to get their to the clinic or send the clinic proof of vaccination.

But, surprisingly, no-hen didn't exactly flock to the campus clinic last year. For strange reasons, only 100 freshmen had yet to face the needle.

In one sense, hundreds of squealing, whimpering freshmen, one after the other, for days and days as fall classes drew to a close. Lines of 'em through the hallways and out the clinic doors. Milling, grumbling, wringing their hands. As if finals weren't enough.

What a great Christmas present for the clinic staff — and the lucky students, too. Ha, ha, ha!

ETSU's 'dome' has its uses, Lots of 'em.

Medicinal 'Dome'

Many teams play indoors, but very few indoor facilities can boast of having a medical college inside an athletic facility.

The tri-level structure referred to as "the Dome" not only houses the athletic department, the physical education department and various administrative offices on the first and third levels, sandwiched inbetween on the second floor are the offices and research laboratories for the James H. Quillen College of Medicine.

Construction on the facility began in March 1973, and the building was used for the first time on Sept. 10, 1977 for a football game against North Alabama. The Buccaneers were defeated, 37-21 and did not see a win in the new field until Oct. 8, 1977, when ETSU defeated conference foe Appalachian State, 38-20.

Movies heat up

Hold onto your corsets, romance and adventure are galloping back onto the silver screen horizon.

Ghost's other-worldly love story starring silver screen heartthrobs Patrick Swayze and Demi Moore sparked all the competition at the box office last year. Tough guys Dick Tracy and sexy Tom Cruise in Born on the Fourth of July wimped out.

Why did so few say boo to Ghost? "Oh, Ghost was good," Volunteer ETSU Coordinator Lucy DeRidder said. "I cried - for three hours afterward... I'd say it was probably my favorite movie of the year."

Coming in a close second in hearts as well as the box office was the 1990 Cinderella story Pretty Woman. "The best movie of the year is easy," said Michelle Wilson, a senior office management major. "Pretty Woman... Cause it's a fairy tale. It's every single girl's dream."

Women weren't the only ones howling for golden boy Kevin Costner in Dances with Wolves. Dr. Jack Mooney, communications professor, said it might rank as his favorite movie ever.

Who needs cartoons like Rescuers Down Under or science fiction like Back to the Future III - or critics - when there are real life fairy tales out there? Sigh.

Kevin Costner danced his way to the box office.

Fuel's alternatives, carpooling, saving the whales or the seals or the ozone. For heaven's sake, what's next in America's stadium mad rush to preserve for future generations?

You got it, Recycling. It's everywhere and for everything - paper, plastic, glass, aluminum, milk cartons, newspapers.

ETSU started its own recycling program, in conjunction with Johnson City, in late 1990.

Morrison's Food Service on campus forsook the classic coffee plastic foam cups for a more degradable paper cup. Dorms have bins. Navy Crevelt, alumni and university relations editor, said.

Student groups and fraternities also pitched in. In 1990-91 to help old "Mom" out. In fact, fall semester introduced a new organization, devoted totally to Mother Earth: Crystal Grove.

And, there's always the recycling receptacles at Kroger ... "You ask a child of the '60s if we need to recycle?" asked David Johnson, section supervisor at Culp University Center. "We're only 20 years to late starting."

Hey, don't throw that yearbook away!

Mutinous mascot

ETSU was mascotless for the first part of the football season as it awaited a new mascot, or at least his suit. Bucky, a Buccaneer wielding a sword, finally made his much-touted debut at the Homecoming proclamation ceremony and attended the four remaining home football games and basketball, too.

The Bucky costume was purchased by the Student Government Association last year, but the arrival was delayed because the cost of the suit was more than expected.

A new suit for Pepper the Parrot was also ordered by SGA and expected to arrive in 1981. But word was it still would have two left feet.

Eat it, just eat it

You are what you eat.

If that's true, then there was an invasion of the Pizza People in 1990.

It's no surprise that pizza remained the favorite food of campus dwellers and workers for yet another year. Hey, who else can you call at 5 in the morning for relief? Ghostbusters?

While it was one thing, Vanilla Ice probably couldn't take credit for frozen yogurt was surely the baby boom, "not" fish of the year.

You can bet your 'ol dentle that pasta was still cool too — the more homemade, the better. "I love spaghetti," said Michele Wilson, who works in Clip University Center office. "I like Italian food. I just never get tired of it. I could eat it almost every day."

You can also bet, though, that the most common meals on campus — outside of the Main Meal — were more along the lines of macaroni and cheese, rather than fettucine allafredo, and peanut butter andologna or luna, rather than meat and potatoes.

But that's what students had to eat, not what they preferred to.

Probably the request most in demand by starving students? A home-cooked meal. Umm.

LOTS OF PARKING

Santa and his elves brought an early Christmas present to the students of ETSU on Aug. 27, in the form of more parking. The new parking lot was located on the western edge of the campus near the outdoor track and across from the intramural field. More than 500 students could now find a parking space in the new lot that was lighted and equipped with emergency telephones.

Because the newly created parking area was located near the baseball field, students were discouraged from parking at the field and encouraged to park in the new lot serviced by the ETSU Busshot shuttle vans.

Vans picked students up at eight stops on campus and transported the students between their cars and classes every 10- to 12 minutes with service to the new lot every five or six minutes.

Away from the tennis courts, Zaatini still plays hard.

Zaatini, tennis 'love match'

Men's basketball was not the only sport at ETSU receiving national recognition. Men's tennis team member Yaser Zaatini qualified for the Davis Cup Tournament over the summer after climbing to the top of the Venezuelan tennis circuit.

How did the 20-year-old Maraezy, Venezuela, native achieve his international status? It all started in 1989 when he defeated the No. 2 and No. 3 Davis Cup players for Venezuela.

"I also reached the semifinals of the Challenger Federation of Venezuela, the Hed Cup Championship, lost in the finals of La Tienda del Pintor and was runner up in the Copa Fiat," Zaatini said, flashing one of his equally winning smiles.

Zaatini was excited to be back at ETSU again this year, but with tournaments almost every weekend, he admitted to having trouble finding time to study.

"It is hard, but somehow I make the grades," he said.

A new drummer

Gone are the days of the '60s and '70s, of rebellion against sending "our boys" (and now, "our girls") to fight someone else's wars. Gone are hippies and love children.

But back are peace signs and patriotism. The Persian Gulf crisis and subsequent deployment of thousands of American troops have changed this former era of — albeit uneasy — peace forever.

Francis Scott Key's "The Star-Spangled Banner" is liable to bring tears to eyes — and not because of a grotesque rendition from a croaking Roseanne Barr.

Flags fly higher. Voices sing stronger. Eyes shine brighter. Tempers flare easier.

Patriotism. That starts with P and that stands for pride. But these feelings for country (and, yes, God) didn't disappear during the period of peace since the Vietnam War. They just were waiting under the surface of society.

"I don't think [the deployment] has increased my feeling of patriotism," said Lucy DeRidder, coordinator of Volunteer ETSU.

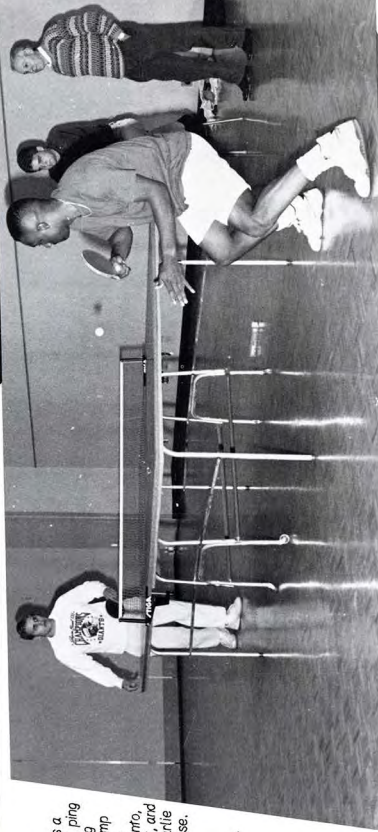

"I've always been patriotic. But it has increased my awareness — My generation has never lived through a war, and it's the first time it's been this close to one, the first time I've ever known people who might end up on the front lines."

That old red, white and blue flag's not the only place stars are twinkling these days.

Flags fly higher, hearts beat faster, War brings us closer.

Who's really playing attention?

Although football fans watching the 1990 Brucaener football team usually occupied about half the seats in Memorial Center, 11 years ago the Bucs played to a full house.

On Oct. 27, 1979, the Bucs hosted the largest home crowd ever in the Dome with 12,469 fans.

Since 1979, attendance has faltered for football games. In the 1980s attendance records for the season at home have been set only at Homecoming games and the attendance does not touch the 12,469 count taken in 1979.

The largest Homecoming crowd in the 1980s was in 1987 when ETSU played The Citadel in front of 9,682 fans. Attendance dropped sharply to 6,887 at the 1989 homecoming game against the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga and again to 6,466 when the Bucs played Valdosta State College in 1990.

Football fans fortitude fluctuates fanastically.

Full O' Buc Shot

It worked for Granny Clampet. It worked for ETSU.

In fact, it got bigger fall semester.

What's that? Shoot fire, it's the campus Buc Shot, which for the past couple years has been shuffling students parked in Egypt back onto the mainland — and to classes, too.

There has been a sizable increase in our ridership," said Dorman Stout, vice president for student affairs, "especially from the new parking lot on the west edge of campus."

That new parking lot, behind the Mini-Market, added about 600 spaces beginning with fall semester, and to accommodate those, ETSU put Buc Shot into overdrive.

All three campus shuttles began running 10- to 12-minute round trips from dawn until long past dark.

Has it helped?

"The service is good," said Mike Carder, a freshman who rides the shuttle every day, "but there still aren't enough vans."

But everyone's always a little early for class, anyway ...

You'll be there in a shot.

Ranchy rap, lies and videotape

A year of controversy, deception and courtroom battles rocked the music world during 1990. Girl, Don't You Know It's True? Please, nothing but lies, lied Milli Vanilli was stripped of its Grammy for Best New Artist when it was learned that the duo were only glorified front persons and had not sang a note on the multi-platinum album.

Heavy-metal group Judas Priest was acquitted of any responsibility in the suicides of two Arizona men. Madonna continued stirring up controversy across the globe. She was asked to tone down her stage act and MTV refused to air her sexually-explicit video for "Justify My Love," creating a huge public demand for the video. Two Live Crew, the raucously-mouthed rap group from Miami, were found innocent of producing a pornographic album.

Despite the controversy, musicians still rallied for a number of benefits, which included the Chrysalis Records and ABC-TV backed Red, Hot and Blue. A tribute to Cole Porter and a AIDS-research benefit, the album featured stunning performances by U2, Thompson Twins, Annie Lennox, Sinead O'Connor, Deborah Harry and Iggy Pop.

ETSN teachers make the grade

There comes a time when everyone needs that pat on the back that encourages smile or maybe just a friend.

When most students come to college, the adjustment can be rough, but there are always those faculty members who go out of their way to help accommodate students in all facets of a student's life. Whether it is help outside of class or just listening to a problem or concern of a student, teachers are there.

"Most of my teachers have been really open when it comes to getting help outside of class in a subject that is hard for me," said sophomore Debra Jessee.

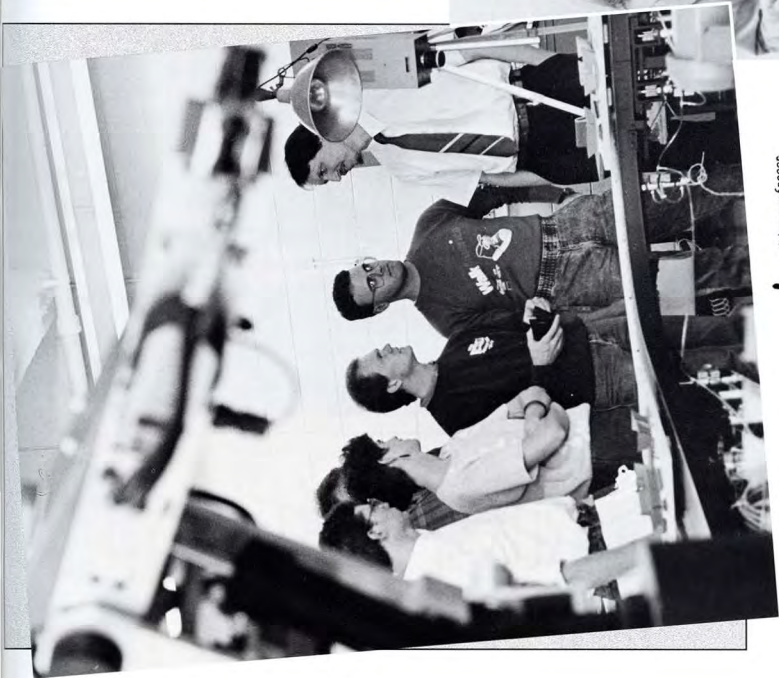

Teachers, like students, lead incredible busy lifestyles.

But that teacher who goes out of his or her way deserves a solid A.

Newsman university treasure

G.W. Kelly class lesson in respect

If G.W. Kelly were an element of a news story, he would be a lead. Because in his second career, as a journalism instructor at ETSU, he's all that's brightest and best, the most sparkling and essential in a teacher and mentor.

If anything, it's Kelly's ever-present, positive, nurturing disposition that makes him, so beloved. "The last day of class," said journalism major Ken Culbertson "he said, 'Class, I know you are just going to be great feature writers' ... He always makes you feel good."

Kelly's students always refer to his extensive experience (42 years at Johnson City Press-Chronicle), his encouragement and an immense respect. But emotions run much deeper than respect.

"We all felt sort of sad when the class was over," said senior Mark Stevens, who had Kelly for Reporting Public Affairs. "We all shook his hand and said goodbye. You just sort of had this lump in your throat -- and it was just the end of a class!"

Just as Kelly carved the proverbial niche for himself in the newspaper business, he has etched a bit of himself into each one of his students since he started at ETSU in 1969.

"He's like a national treasure," Culbertson said.

"It was a prize-winning editorial writer and almost every year won the JPR award!"

ETSU's Man of the Decade

Just who is that man behind the scenes? Who is that man that gets the university through the good and bad times? Who keeps everything in order?

Just who is that man?

That man is ETSU President Dr. Ronald Beller.

As he begins his second decade as president of ETSU, Beller has helped place ETSU in the spotlight.

Increasing on-campus activities was a big part of Beller's plans for the university.

"Now there is so much more activity on the campus, we have become an institution that students can take pride in," Beller said, reflecting during fall term. "In recent years, I think there has been a real change in attitude of the students."

Beller has seen ETSU through the formative years of a very young and unstable medical school, a fatal plane crash in a campus parking lot that killed the two occupants, the dismissal of basketball coach Barry Dowd, several changes in ETSU's football coaching staff and the hiring of several academic deans. Then, too, he's become the No. 1 fan of what have become nationally-known basketball and golf teams.

Through all the changes and all the traditions, though, one man continues to stand behind the university. It is none other than "that man," president Ronald Beller.

Not Through

WHEN ONE SPORTING SEASON STOPPED, ANOTHER BEGAN. WHILE THE FOOTBALL TEAM WAS ON THE ROAD IN THE LAST GAME OF THE SEASON, THE PHYSICAL PLANT ROLLED UP THE TUF AND PUT DOWN THE COURT. WHILE THE BASKETBALL TEAM WAS AT NO. 10 IN THE NATION, TENNIS PLAYER YASSER ZAAFINI WAS RANKED NO. 17. AS THE RANKINGS CLIMBED, SO DID FAN AND STUDENT PARTICIPATION IN EVERY ASPECT OF BUCCANEER ATHLETICS. SPORTS WAS NEVER THROUGH AT ETSU.

Keith Jennings was one little man who brought national recognition to ETSU.

Field of Dreams

Once again, the Buccaneer baseball team took to the field with a dream — to improve.

After coming off of a 10-31 record for the 1989-90 season, the Bucs looked forward to starting anew during the fall exhibition season and preparing for the spring season.

In the first game of the fall season, head Coach Ken Campbell/Bucs defeated Walters State Community College 5-3.

After a series of games against local junior colleges, ETSU faced nationally ranked Clemson, but lost 17-9 in what started out as a close game.

"We knew going into a game like this that we didn't have the pitching depth that Clemson had," said Campbell. "But the pitches that we do have work very, very hard, and we felt that they're improving every day."

"It went about like we expected," he said. "We knew that our program was not as good as Clemson's was at that time. Clemson has an established program where right now we are just rebuilding our program. We have a very young team."

The young Bucs went into the spring season with games against No. 4 Georgia Tech, the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and Duke in the first eight games of the season.

PGA fore ETSU

Some of the best golfers on the PGA Tour came to ETSU in September to help the Buccaneers Golf team raise money for scholarship and travel expenses.

It was the fourth annual Pro-Am tournament held at the Johnson City Country Club and was once again sponsored by Wendy's and Coca-Cola.

"The proceeds from the program allow us to play on the best NCAA Division I schedules in the country and is one of the best reasons for our success in the past two years.

"This will be our fourth program and the event gets bigger and better every year," head golf coach Fred Warren said. "The team benefits directly from the pro-am and I also believe that the East Tennessee golfing public benefits.

"It is not everyday that area golf fans get the opportunity to watch and talk to some of the best golfers in the world."

Leading the list of golfers this past year was former ETSU All-Americans Bobby Wadkins and Mike Hulbert.

Another famous golfer at the tournament was Calvin Peete, who played for his first time in the pro-am this season, and first joined the PGA tour in 1976.

He has evolved into one of the best members on the tour even though he suffered a broken elbow as a youngster that he still cannot fully extend.

Another thing that separates him from the other golfers participating in the event is that he did not begin golfing until the age of 23.

Going out with a bang

In her final year as a Buccaneer, Jill West was determined to go out with a bang. West, a 5-foot-10 outside hitter for the Buccaneers' volleyball team, is this year's only senior. Head Coach Kelly Andrews says it's going to be tough to see the team's only senior leave. "I want to keep her a few more years," Andrews said. "But I guess we'll have to let her go on and graduate."

West started playing volleyball in junior high school and has improved her game steadily since.

She was named Most Valuable Player at the Winthrop Invitational in Rock Hill, S.C. — probably because she had 53 kills, a .294 hitting percentage, 13 service aces, 45 digs and four blocks. "Jill had a super great tournament and was very deserving," Andrews said.

In the Southern Conference, West set a single season mark for kills with 528 and a career mark of 1248. She had a career hitting percentage of .210 and set a school career record with 3,431 offensive attempts. She was the Southern Conference player of the week for the third and fourth weeks of the season.

"The thing about receiving awards for MVP or whatever is that it is not just a credit to me, but to the whole team," West said. "I couldn't be what I am without them."

West believes her strength lies, not necessarily in technical skill, but more in her desire to be out on the court. "There is always room for improvement in skills," she said. "I'm not yet as good as I can be."

Commenting on West's technical skill, Andrews says, "Jill is one of the most, if not the most, technically coachable athletes I've had in my 10 years of coaching."

"You can tell Jill about one little glitch in some technical aspect of her game," Andrews said, "and she will strive immediately to correct it."

Andrews also said West is more vocal this season, and the player agrees. "I guess I just feel that it is part of my responsibility as a senior," she said.

West's position as an outside hitter requires a very reliable and powerful athlete," Andrews said. "She is key to our outside attack, and getting the ball up. It's hard not to be glowing when talking about Jill West. There just aren't too many glowing things to say."

On the day of a game, West herself is more focused than glowing. "I try not to think much about what I am going to do, until I'm putting on my uniform about an hour before," the elementary education major says.

West's picture appears on the front of the recurrent ETSU volleyball media guide. She laughs. "It sure wasn't my idea," she says. "But it is definitely quite a compliment!"

Lady Bucs gain experience

Last season, the Lady Bucs and Buccaneers closed out the fashioned a record of 18-13 1990 season with a 16-12 and then teamed with Cotrell in record and a second-straight doubles action to finished third-place finish in the second in the SC and a 19-10 Southern Conference.

The Lady Bucs returned five of six starters from that winning squad including Debbie Marshall who reached the finals of the SC tournament.

Juniors Kim Toohy and Whitney Buck and sophomores Renee Lucchesi and Jenni Cotrell also returned.

Toohy played No. 3

"We played last season with a lot of young players," said head coach Dave Mullins.

"Debbie Marshall was a mainstay in our lineup. I look for her to have an outstanding season this year and with a year of experience under our younger player's belt, I look for them to improve their record."

When mentioning ETSU men's tennis, the name Yaser Zaatini says it all.

During his sophomore year of college Zaatini was ranked No. 14 in the nation and almost beat out the men's basketball team as far as breaking the top ten was concerned, but he was interested in a smaller ball — a tennis ball.

Over last summer, he won the Venezuelan National Hardcourt Championships and returned to school in the fall ranked third in Venezuela.

This 20-year-old Maracay, Venezuela, native was the first Buc tennis player ever to earn his way into the main draw of a grand slam event by competing in the Volvo/intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association Collegiate Tennis Series.

Even though this Davis Cup player likes playing tennis at ETSU, he admits there are differences between Tennessee and his home.

"People are more interested in tennis," he said. "It is more of a spectator sport in Venezuela. People come to watch tennis matches. Here we have a hard enough time getting the girl tennis players to come to the matches."

Another distinct difference is courts in Venezuela are of hard, red clay whereas most outdoor courts in America are not.

"The clay courts are much faster as opposed to the United States," he said.

"Another difference is that you have to belong to a club to play tennis unlike here where you can just go out and get a court," Zaatini added.

After leading the Bucs to a 21-4 record and a second-place finish in the Southern Conference last season, he was looking forward to the spring season.

"I played well last semester and everybody is expecting me to do it again," he said.

INJURIES OUTNUMBER PLAYERS

With a list of injuries ranging from ankle aches to turf toe, it's no wonder the Buccaneers football team was 9-2 for the season.

But regardless of the injuries, ETSU pulled out two important wins and came very close a few times, but close only counts in horseshoes and hand grenades.

"We just couldn't seem to keep everyone well enough to practice," head football coach Don Riley said near the end of the season.

And the lack of practicing as a team was evident every Saturday the Bucs took to the field.

Perhaps the worst loss of the season came when former head football coach Mike Ayers defeated his old team 64-46.

It was an emotional game until the end with players and fans on both sides caught up in the ties between Ayers and his former team.

After the loss, Kwayu Graham apologized to Riley when he confessed he "let him down."

But even with the dark shadow of the loss to Wofford near the end of the season, the Bucs had two phenomenal wins.

First it was a surprising upset of Southern Conference rival Marshall in a 38-17 decision.

The pride of this game was the bumberuski, a play in which Derrick Hollins successfully "hid the ball" from the Thundering Herd and ran in for a surprise touchdown that stunned the crowd, the Herd and most of the media.

A second win was the homecoming game against Valdosta State, but over half the crowd left at half-time and didn't witness the Bucs' 37-22 win.

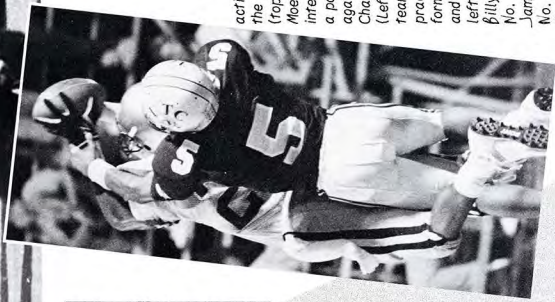

"Any win is nice," said Riley, "but winning the homecoming game is especially nice because of the alumni present."

But with the unbalanced win/loss record, even Riley looked at the season realistically.

"On any given night, any team can win or lose," he said. "We just never capitulated on our chances to win more games."

Tackle Chad Radcliffe played in all 11 hard hitting Buccaneers football games and is shown at right blocking an Appalachian State player. Overall, Radcliffe had 40 unassisted tackles and 37 assisted tackles, recovered two fumbles, broke up two passes and sacked two quarterbacks for losses totaling 12 yards this season.

Decisions,

Decisions

Head football coach Don Riley had one big decision to make before every game and it was who was going to be at quarterback.

The Buccaneers were blessed with two quality quarterbacks, Randy Meredith and Mark Williams.

While both, in Riley's opinion could play well for the Bucs, he usually started Meredith.

"Randy is excellent in calling the audible calls," Riley said. "Both guys are great and are mature enough to understand why sometimes I chose one over another."

Over the course of the season, both Meredith and Williams saw action on the field for the Bucs and on occasion Riley started Williams in the quarterback position.

"I remember being second in college and wishing someone would give me a chance. So I gave Mark a chance just to see what he could do out there," Riley said.

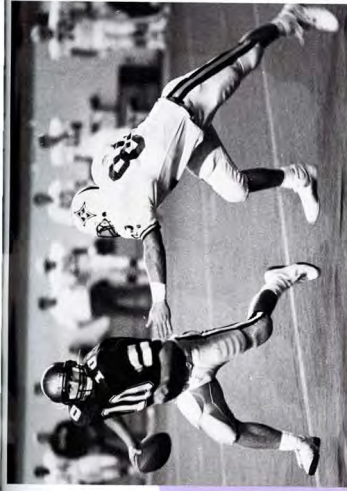

In all, Meredith played in 11 games and Williams played in seven.

While Meredith was a passer, Williams preferred to run the ball as much as possible.

Meredith completed 65 percent of all passes for nine touchdowns and 1,858 in net yardage.

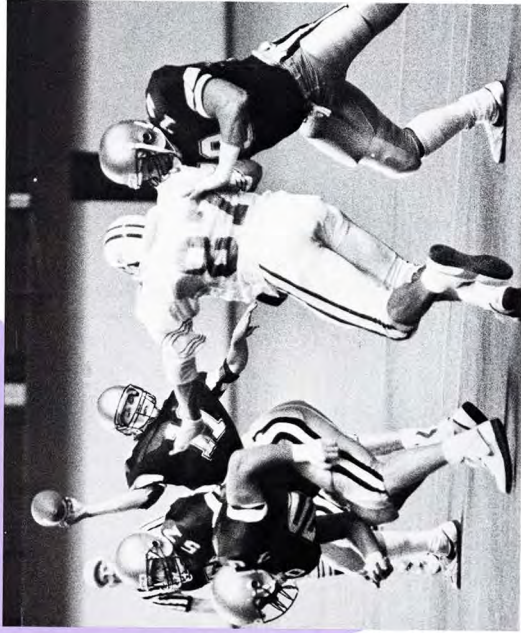

His counterpart Williams completed 52 percent of all passes and rushed for two touchdowns.

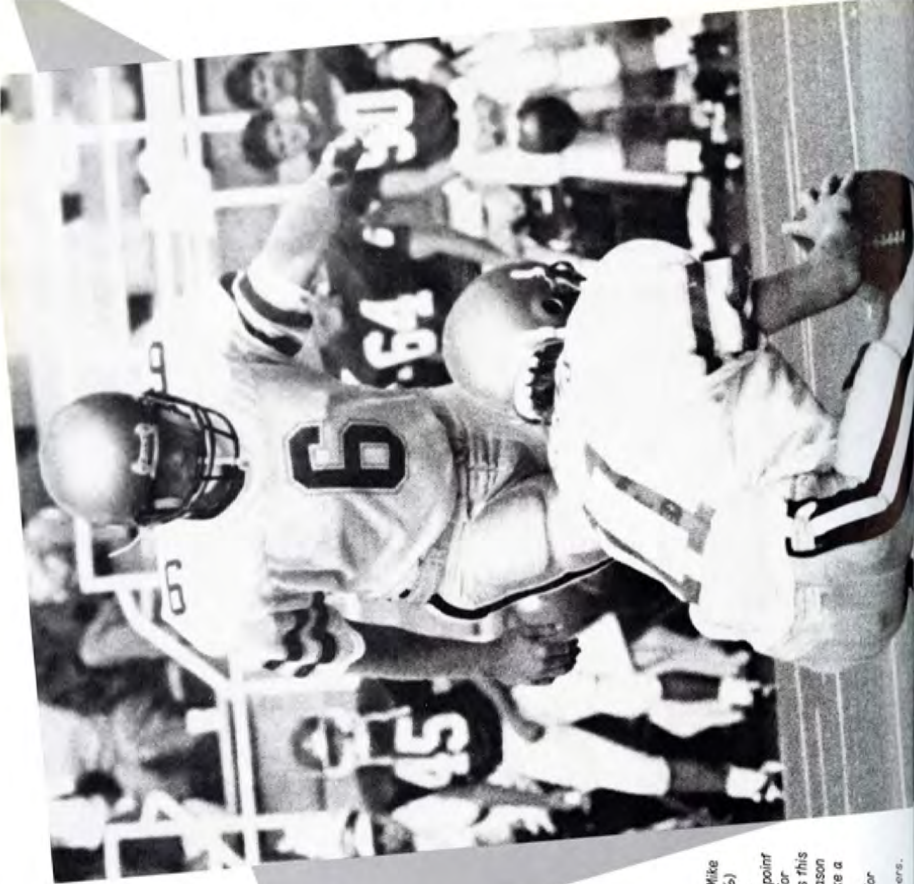

All together, the quarterbacking team of Meredith and Williams were responsible for 13 touchdowns, passes the ball for 2,781 yards and only had 20 sacks the entire season.

Kicker Mike Shoun (6) was the leading point scorer for the Bucs this past season and broke a scoring record for the Buccaneers.

TOUCHDOWNS

S AND PAT'S

Derrick Hollins (18) frequently carried the ball to the endzone for ETSU at whatever the cost.

Two outstanding football players were a ray of light in an otherwise dim football season for the Buccaneers.

Kicker Mike Shoun and tail back Derrick Hollins lead the Bucs inscoring with 66 and 54 points respectively during the eleven game season.

Shoun broke the record for PATs and had a record high 13 points against Valdosta State in Memorial Center.

Hollins was in a three way tie with 12 points against Southern Conference foe Marshall University with teammates Randy Meredith and David Rockhold.

Meredith scored his 12 points against Marshall also while Rockhold got his even dozen against Virginia Military Institute.

Hollins also rushed an incredible 85 yards against Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesborough in a touchback and it was his longest rush of the season.

The most famous play by Hollins was the bumbumbaruski that got a touchdown for the Bucs against Marshall.

Hollins rushed a total of 935 yards during the 1990 season.

ON THE WAY UP

Ranked as high as No. 10 in the nation, the men's basketball team was on its way up.

Sports Illustrated, The Sporting News, CBS and ABC sports along with ESPN and Sports South all 'discovered' the Buccaneers in what Steve Rushin of Sports Illustrated described as a 'sleepy little town called Johnson City.'

But the rankings scared the college team which was not used to all the hype that accompanies being in the top 25. "Every time we go up in the rankings, we screw up and lose," senior guard Keith 'Mister' Jennings said.

"We just aren't mature enough to handle it yet," he added.

With maturity being the question, the Bucs ended up with a 24-4 overall record and tri-champions of the Southern Conference with Furman and the University Tennessee-Chattanooga.

But the amazing thing is that the Bucs did it all without the big man Greg Dennis who was lost after the NIT to a broken foot he received in practice.

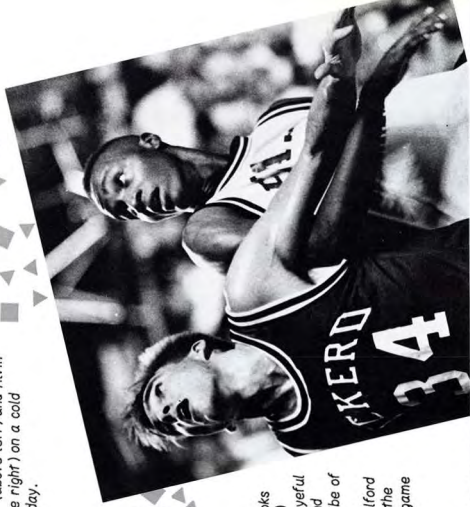

Dennis continued to support the team from the bench and became the color announcer for Chip Kessler of WJCL-AM, the Buccaneer Radio Network.

"I at least feel I am helping out when I travel with the team," said Dennis, the 6-foot 11 senior center who decided to take a medical redshirt and return next season for the Bucs.

"I'm looking forward to next year," he said. "Calvin (Talford), Marty (Story), Rodney (English), me and the rest of the team are looking forward to another great year."

Coming off the bench, Rodney English (above) and Jerry Palphrey (right) were never cold. English almost always lead the Bucs in rebounding while Palphrey picked up charges off the other team and developed quite a liking for the three point line by the latter part of the regular season.

He may be little, but Eric Palmer proved that he could possibly follow in the footsteps of Keith Jennings with a little work. Palmer stunned the crowd with his fancy footwork and speed that made him look like a blur on the floor, and at just over 5 feet tall, he was nothing but a blur to the players he guarded who were almost always a foot taller than he was except when he took to the air for a layup.

Bench support was very important to the team's morale, and Lottin Riddick, Moe Hayes, Marty Story and Coach Story were helping the team win. The players were showing

With his foot in a cast, Greg Dennis was content to watch his recruiting class play the rest of the season without him on the floor. Dennis was to return next season for the Buccaneers.

'MISTER' DOES IT ALL

'Mister' Assits.

'Mister' Three.

'Mister' Free-throw.

'Mister' Steals.

'Mister' Lay-up.

From reading about Buccaneer basketball, the outsider might be amazed at what Keith 'Mister' Jennings has accomplished in one season, but the truth is he has been working hard at college basketball for four years at ETSU.

"It's not just me," Jennings said. "The team makes me look good. I never worry about passing off to anyone on the team because I know they all can make the shot."

But Jennings doesn't always pass off. Sometimes he goes up for a lay-up but he never slams the ball like the crowd wants him to do.

"I'm not a slammer," he said. "I leave that up to Calvin, Rodney and the rest of the team."

But his dynamic stealing ability is enough to bring the crowd to its feet.

"Whatever we need whether it be a steal, a shot or a rebound, 'Mister' is there to get it for us," said head coach Alan LeForce. "He's a coach on the floor. He's just incredible."

And it's not just here at home that Jennings is famous, guard Chris Corchiani of North Carolina knows Jennings well after his Wolfpack was defeated for the second year in a row by Jennings' Bucs.

"I look forward to playing against him, he's really great," Corchiani said. Look out NBA, here comes 'Mister'.

"I depend on the rest of the team," Keith 'Mister' Jennings said. At right a member of the team, Darell Jones, helps a fouled Jennings up in his last home game.

the Memories

Faithful fans during football season were few and far between, but Patsy Pickle was honored for her dedication through the good and bad years of ETSU football.

Interathletic support is important to men's basketball players Rodney English, Trazel Silvers, Moe Hayes, Marty Story and Major Geer.

Football fans traveled many a mile to watch the tigers play anywhere from Charleston, S.C., to Murfreesboro.

Basketball fans waited over an hour on the men's team to arrive from Phoenix after the NIT games. Above, a tatty congratulates Keith "Mister" Jennings on his performance and welcomes him back to campus.

Well traveled fans

They traveled for miles, waited after games and waited on the buses to return. Rain, sleet, snow and roads worse than the West Virginia Turpike could not keep them away.

They were the few, the proud, the fans.

During football season, fans were a rare breed, or a special breed depending on the way the outsider looked at it.

But during basketball season, fans at ETSU were a force to be reckoned with.

"We try to get to as many games as possible," said Jane Saddler, a faithful fan of Buccaneer basketball from back when the team was 7-21.

"I think it helps the guys to know someone is out there cheering for them," said Michelle Erickson, a freshman fan.

And when fan appreciation day rolled around, the fans showed up in droves to collect autographs on everything from hats to shirts and even basketballs.

While the players enjoyed it, sometimes the fan worship got tiring.

"I like the kids. They're so sweet," said Keith 'Mister' Jennings. "But sometimes my legs are tired and I just want to go home, but I usually don't mind signing a few autographs. It only takes a minute."

Fans followed the Bucs closely, whether it be through a losing football season or a trip to the NCAA Tournament.

And the players realized that all of the sudden they were role models.

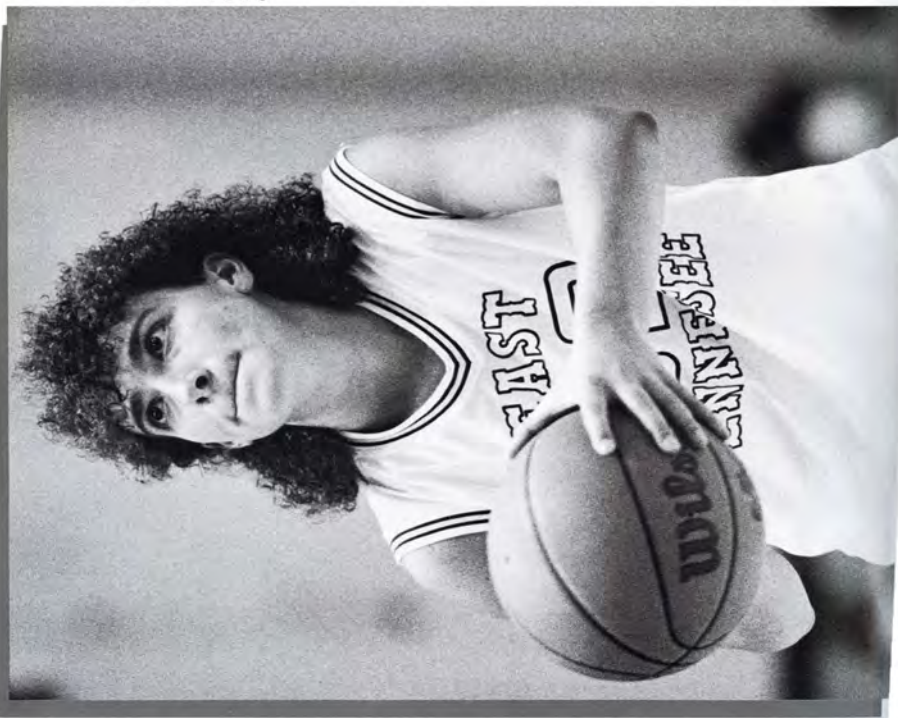

"I just hope that I can influence some kid to stay in school," said Jennings. "Then it will all have been worth it."

Athletic Director Janice Shelton congratulates Chip Kessler of WJCV-AM on his book about the Bucs.

Coach Judy McKinney and Manager Lisa Hollingsworth.

Basketball was not just a men's sport at ETSU with the Lady Bucs on the prowl.

Led by the dynamic shooting ability of Nicole Hopson, a Greenville native, the Lady Bucs had several key Southern Conference wins against Furman, UT-Chattanooga and Western Carolina.

"Some shots... I just don't know how in the world they went in," Hopson said after defeating the Lady Paladins 100-97 in a rousing home game.

The winover Furman came after what head coach Debbie Richardson called a "long dry spell."

But that wasn't the end of the road of wins for the Lady Bucs and Hopson wasn't the only hero.

Against Western Carolina, Carla Cantrell took the spotlight.

"Carla definitely tightened up on defense in the second half," said Richardson.

Cantrell played well enough to steal away the Lady Catamounts possession five times and helped her teammates find the basket seven times.

While Cantrell was focused on this game, the rest of the team kept focusing in on the season and found the Lady Mocs in their sights.

In a smashing 66-62 victory in Chattanooga, the Lady Bucs played nine of eleven players.

"We were very focused," said assistant coach LaVonda Wagner. "We executed our game plan and all worked together."

The Lady Bucs continued prowling around the conference for the remainder of the season and proved that basketball was not just for men.

Year of Hills

and Valleys

Buccaneer runners pulled out in front during a few of the races at the USAir Invitational in Memorial Center this year.

It was a season of highs and lows for East Tennessee State University's men's and women's cross country teams last fall, but with a hint of promise the Buccaneers can return to their former glory years of the 70s and early 80s.

The year started off with a bang and a successful trip down to Clemson, S.C. The Bucs surprised everyone with the championship of the Clemson Invitational and Irish freshman Seamus Power claimed individual honors.

Next, the team traveled to Cullowhee, N.C., to preview the Southern Conference Championship course and once more the Bucs chewed up the field winning their second meet in as many tries.

The first two wins were put into context though two weeks later when the Bucs traveled to UT-Knoxville for a dual meet with the Volunteers. The fourth ranked Vols with two All-Americans swept the first five places and put ETSU's Power in sixth.

But during the SC championships, the team pulled together and swept the first four places with Power being the first freshman in ETSU history to win since the Bucs joined the SC in 1978-79.

With the returning veterans and only the loss of Scott Faulds, ETSU can hopefully return to being among the top programs in the nation and dominate the conference.

The Lady Bucs are in the midst of rebuilding after heavy graduation losses.

Shelly Robinson lead the team for most of the season and the junior had a 19th place finish at the SC title meet while the team finished fifth.

Jennifer Nichols ran with a chest infection most of the fall but rebounded to finish 23rd at the SC meet.

Staci Lewis, Madeline Boyle and Stephanie Southerland, gained an additional year of experience, and with all five back and a good recruiting year, hope to return to the upper division next year.

USAir Borne

After all the smoke had cleared from two days of the USAir Invitational Saturday, eight meet records were either broken or tied.

The class track and field competition began Friday afternoon with qualifying races which some of ETSD's track athletes participated in.

The competition heated up Friday night when some of the world's best came to Memorial Center to show their stuff.

Center records were set in two of the first three events, the men's pole vault and women's 3000 meter walk. Istvan Bagyula of George Mason tied the mark of 18-6 1/2 set in 1987 and Debbi Lawrence set a record of 12:47.7 in the first ever held walk.

As the evening progressed, so did the action at fast pace.

Midway through the night's slate of races was the Holston Valley 100 meters, one of the featured events. The only thing missing was much anticipated competitor, Raghib "Rocket" Ismail of Notre Dame.

Ismail was scheduled to run in the 100 meters, but Thursday announced he would enter the NFL draft and bypass the USAir meet.

With Ismail absent, Eric Akogyrian of George Mason University took the 100 meet in 10.51 beating a solid field which included Olympic winner Lee McNeil.

Minutes later in the men's 800 meter run, Paul Ereng, the record holder in the same event, set another record by clocking 1:48.50. He held off George Kersh of Mississippi to take the victory.

In the women's 200 meters, Carlette Guidry of the University of Texas won her second race of the evening. She earlier had won the 55 meter dash.

Several races later came the much anticipated Women's Mile. Returning to defend her title and meet record set last year was Gina Procaccio, but also in the field was last year's runner-up Svetlana Kitova of the Soviet Union and world record holder Doina Melinte of Romania. Procaccio took the early lead and held off a late charge by Kitova to capture the title in 4:30.16.

Procaccio later said she felt all the pressure was on the world record holder and didn't expect to repeat. "When I found out she was going to run I told my coach 'that's it. I have no chance to win," she said. "I was hoping I would at least be able to run with her. When I made my move, she didn't really respond. This will be a boost to my confidence, because I'm going to race her again in a few weeks."

Next on tap was the Men's Mile. A fast time was assured because of the athletes participating.

Marcus O'Sullivan of Ireland, better known as "The Chairman of the Boards" for his mastery of the indoor surface, was the man to watch. But this was by no means a one man race, thanks in part to the presence of Olympic champion Henry Rono.

The race got off to a fast start with former ETSU standout Kevin Johnson setting the pace. He pulled through the half way point at just under four minutes. This was a little fast for O'Sullivan. "I told Kevin to slow down at the half," he said.

But it wasn't long before "the Chairman" took over. He moved into the lead and never gave it up. "I was in a state of fatigue with a lap to go, I was very worried," he later said.

Despite his worries, O'Sullivan pulled away to win in 3:58.96. "I was very surprised with the condition I was in," he said. "I was very pleased."

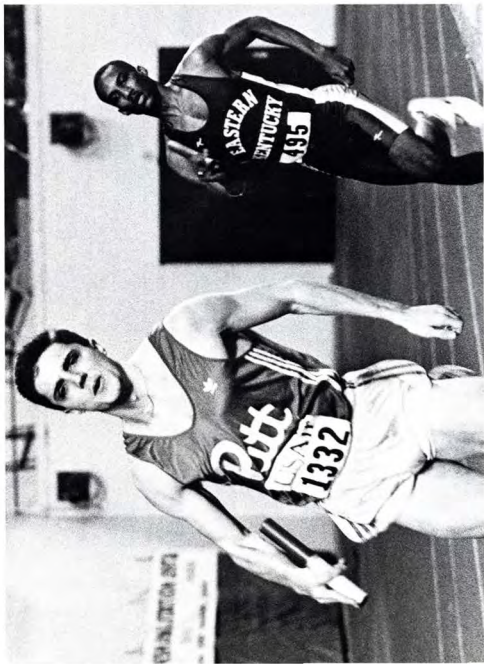

Many of ETSU's track athletes which didn't race Friday, ran in the trials Saturday. However, no ETSU athletes made the finals.

The men's mile was one of the popular events at the meet.

Runners from all over the United States and the world participated in the USAir Invitational.

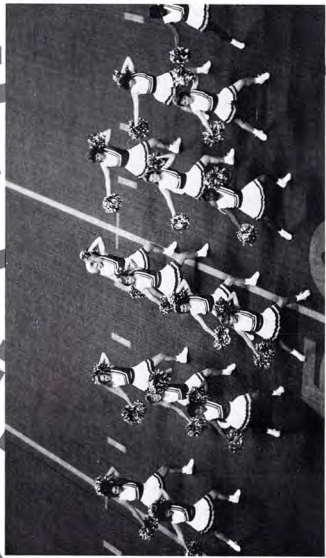

Neil Malobicky of Pittsburg and Ed Larrey of Eastern Kentucky finished fifth and sixth in the men's mile relay.

The Beat of the

Bucs goes on

Starting out in football season on Gentry Field and ending up with basketball season at the Southern Conference Tournament in Asheville, N.C., the Buc's represented the school in dance.

Look — down on the court — no it's not the ETSU cheerleaders it's the Pompon Squad!

This new dance team/pom squad entertained during halftime at four men's basketball games and the Southern Conference tournament in Asheville, N.C. The squad performed during the pre-game last semester.

Members of the 'Beat of the Bucs', as they are called, wanted the students to know they are not junior varsity cheerleaders — they are a dance team.

"We are looking to perform a different routine every two weeks or so during basketball season," said Carrie Williams, captain of the squad.

The dance team was unveiled at Midnight Madness, but, at that time, did not have a routine to continue performing at the games.

The squad consists of 16 ETSU students from as far away as Atlanta and within a 30 mile radius of ETSU, said Williams.

The 16 members were selected in October during general try-outs.

"We can have up to 20 girls," Williams said, "but we selected the 16 based on scores — we wanted quality instead of quantity."

Something for everyone

Can't find anything to do?

Bored with just sitting around the room playing Nintendo games? Head on down to Brooks Gym and see what the Department of Intramurals has for you.

"We try to fit everyone's needs whether it be croquet on Sunday afternoons or a serious game of 5 on 5 basketball," said Phillip Vannoorbeeck, coordinator of Intramurals.

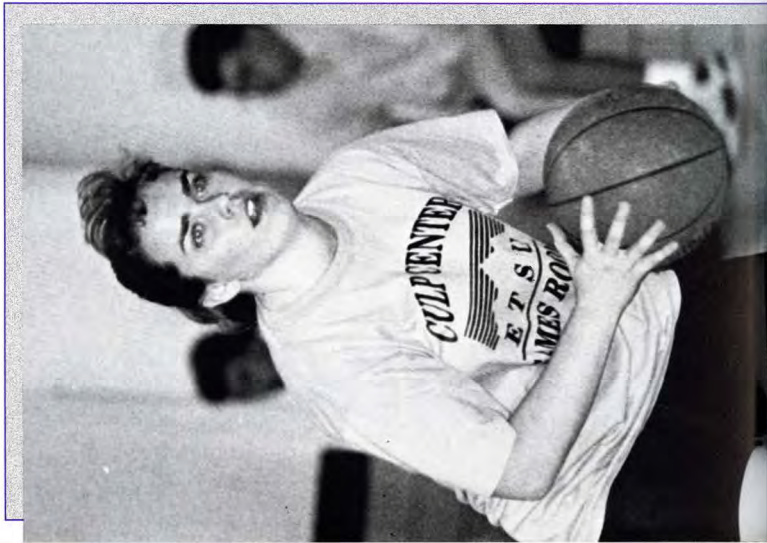

Greeks, independents, resident halls and commuters were welcome to join faculty and staff members in the weight room, on the football field or in the gym for everything from basketball to volleyball.

Two races/walks for charity were organized this year and were supported by both the students and the community.

"We hope to expand to offer more," said Vannoorbeeck.

Once again, in 1990-91, Pikez were one of the dominant forces in the great system, since their arrival in 1955, the Pikez have excelled in all aspects of campus life. Pikez began the '90-91 Kappa year by once again, winning the annual Homecoming activities, which they have won 23 out of the last 25 years. Pikez were also honored during the year for the most improved grades and won the overall infamously trophy. Pikez also contributed to their community by donating much of their time and money to a number of local charities. Taking the initiative, the Pikez started a neighborhood watch in the area of the "tree street" area to help keep their neighborhood safe. In short, the Pikez have shown that they have what it takes to stay on top of the Greek scene at ETSU.

EAST TENNESSEAN

The spring 1991
East

Tennessee
staff pondering coverage of a burning news story.

All the news that's fit to print. What the people don't know will hurt them.

ETAU, student-run newspaper, doesn't have a catchy motto to gather news by, but the Tennessee did take on a new philosophy, as well as a new look in 1990-91.

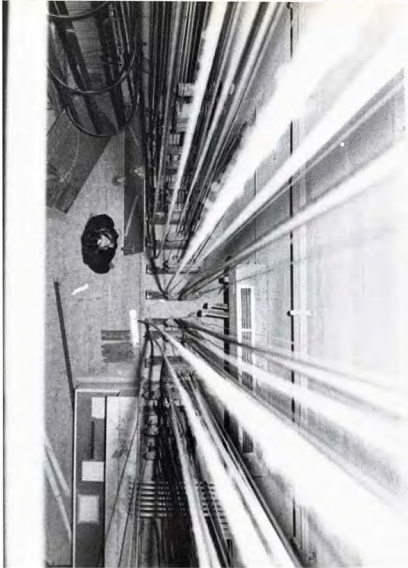

The 11-page weekly paper sought to pique interest and fire emotions of its generally uninterested readership with timely and pertinent stories on such topics as the Lambda Society, Crystal Grove and the sexual evolution. Watch out Dan Rafter. Better get your sweater back out.

The spring staff, clockwise from left, Eugenia Eifer, managing editor; Aaron Dollar, circulation; Marly Edwards, feature writer; Lia Harkell; Laura Odom, feature writer; Rick O'Neal, artist; Maara MacMoran, news editor; Aran Taylor, sports editor; Kathy Keaton, JGA reporter; Michelle Erickson, sports writer; Jurtin Haley, photographer; and Mark Stever, executive editor.

That modest, unassuming reporter that Maura is. And so conscientious, too.

Oh, look, the editor's voicing again. He must be composing one of his famous music reviews.

That black speck at the foot of stage riggings is Eugenia hot on a story.

Stop the presses Office manager Candy Naff's been cited working at the lightboards

Keep typing that copy, Teresa. It'll all be over soon. Or else.

Smile, Darbie! Only 30 or 40 more spreads to do tonight, in addition to five tests this week.

Be free! Be free! The Buccaneer staff is released! Be free!

Editors Lama and Darbie just get a big kick out of working on the yearbook.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

The Baptist Student Union is known for more than just "home cooking" and its Tuesday night king/queen, which meet at the Baptist Student Center. The Baptist Student Union, which works along with the other campus ministries, is also known for welcoming new students to fellowship through music, Bible study, drama, games, and more.

The Baptist Student Union takes part in campus activities including homecoming. The BSU placed second in the club category, information, and campus ministry. The BSU participates in many community service projects including helping an annual Christmas party for the residents of the Tennessee Baptist Children's Home located in Johnson City and the Alternative Home located in Greenville.

The BSU sponsors conferences, ministry, and ministry opportunities national and international. Last summer the BSU sent two students to Leningrad, Russia, as a part of a BSU team for ministry work.

The BSU invites you to a fall menu of downhome fun, not to mention cooking. Jo visit the Baptist University Center and be a part of a group with a purpose.

New State of the Art MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY!

This fully automated, computerized plasmapheresis system makes it easier than ever to save lives.

WHO'S LIVES?
Plasma products are used for burn victims, those who have undergone cardiovascular surgery, hemophiliacs and newborn babies, just to name a few.

The Autopheresis-C® was designed with an emphasis on safety. All phases of the donation are continuously monitored by sophisticated computerized sensors. The blood is fully contained within a closed and sterile plastic tubing set which is changed for each procedure.

Call, or stop by our plasma center. We're eager to give you more information.

no can keep their eyes off those Bucs?

When it's over, it's over. The war in the Middle East is over. The Buccaneer basketball team's Cinderella season is over. ETSU's 1990-91 year is over. One can never go back. But there's no law against looking!

'SCOPE of FACES

Washes, wars, co-ops, free, budget cuts. The campus kaleidoscope is ever-changing, and the different faces of university life shine through. But blue and gold undoubtedly dominate the spectrum. A colorful end to a colorful year.
